

THE LATEST BOUTIQUE AND LUXURY HOTELS

HOTEL NEWS

Clockwise from left: The Jackson Ranch at Bawley Point; Osborn House's cabin room; and interiors at Hobart's the Rox.

TASMANIA

Located in the centre of Hobart's Midtown, The Rox is a new luxury self-contained accommodation option in the CBD. With interior concepts completed by Tess Newman-Morris, (best known for her work on Satellite Island), each apartment showcases Tasmanian furniture makers, ceramicists and designers. The Rox has also joined forces with Sonny, Matt Breen and the team will deliver a slice of Hobart's coolest vinyl and wine bar straight to your room, with a daily changing set menu.

NEW SOUTH WALES

The Southern Highlands is getting its own Cotswolds-inspired luxury boutique getaway via Osborn House. The 22-suite property in Bundanoon is being overseen by Adam Abrams (Matteo Double Bay and The Island) and Eddie Levy (Lobo Plantation and Kittyhawk). London-based designer Linda Boronkay (former lead creative at Soho House) has worked with Sydney-based Mac Design Studio to transform the original 1892 guesthouse into a playful yet elegant hideaway, replete with fireplaces, balcony baths, well appointed European vintage furnishings and views over the neighbouring Morton National Park. Dining will include Dinah's restaurant and George's bar, with chefs Segundo Farrell and Luz Gimenez, both who spent time under the tutelage of fire-cooking trailblazer, Francis Mallmann. They will helm frequent outdoor fire-cooking events, alongside a traditional dining offering, with a cooking school set to open later this year.

On the coast, the team behind Bannisters in Port Stephens and Mollymook has opened The Jackson Ranch in Bawley Point. Located on 37 acres of natural forest with serene views of Willinga Lake and taking cues from the ranches of Montana, the five newly renovated cabins, include a grand four-bedroom homestead, plus extensive event spaces.